

AMERICAN ACADEMY of ACTUARIES

SPEAKERS

Cori Uccello is the Academy's Senior Health Fellow, serving as the actuarial profession's chief public policy liaison on health issues. Ms. Uccello is a member of the Academy and a fellow of the Society of Actuaries. Currently, she is the vice-chairperson of the Academy's Uninsured Work Group and she also serves on the Academy's Committee on Social Insurance.

Prior to joining the Academy, Ms. Uccello was a Senior Research Associate at the Urban Institute. While there, she authored numerous publications on health and retirement security. Ms. Uccello received a bachelor's degree in math and biology from Boston College and a master's degree in public policy from Georgetown University.

Patrick Collins is a vice president and reinsurance underwriter for American Re-Insurance Company in Princeton, NJ.

Mr. Collins develops and manages health reinsurance programs of various types in the United States. An actuary by trade, Mr. Collins has spent the majority of career designing and managing health insurance programs. In his current position, he has extensive experience evaluating risk profile and pricing, negotiating and implementing treaty (contract), monitoring financial results, and participating in ongoing program management.

Mr. Collins is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries and a fellow of the Society of Actuaries. He is also a member of the Academy's Defined Contribution Health Plans Work Group.

Brent Greenwood is a Principal in the Atlanta office of Reden & Anders, Ltd. Mr. Greenwood is an actuary specializing in financial and strategic managed care engagements.

Mr. Greenwood has extensive experience with managed care benefit design, pricing product development, provider contracting, as well as general financial analysis. He is familiar with the unique "geographic" aspects of health care due to his broad based consulting experience across the country, as well as to a variety of clients, including HMOs, insurers, employers, hospitals and physician groups. Besides traditional actuarial analysis, other special areas of expertise include Medicare, Medicaid, provider reimbursement strategies, merger valuations, employer cost containment strategies, and medical management strategies based on an analysis of ROI.

In 1993, Brent was one of eight actuaries chosen to independently audit the cost projections for President Clinton's proposal to reform the health care system. He continues to maintain an interest in both state and federal health reform and is frequently asked to evaluate the impact of proposed legislation on his client's operations.

Mr. Greenwood is a member of the American Academy of Actuaries and an associate of the Society of Actuaries. He is also a member of the Academy's Defined Contribution Health Plans Work Group.
